a traditional year of spending and winning

Senior Portraits, Prom, Senior Picnic and Banquet, Grad Night, and Graduation. Every single senior knew what these meant ... Money! Senior year traditionally meant that money would be spent in excess. By the time the end of the year came, pockets, purses, and wallets were found empty and barren. Many students obtained after-school jobs to fulfill their financial needs. Jobs ranging from working at fast food restaurants to clothing stores were held by many seniors.

To lessen the cost of the activities, the senior class held various fundraisers throughout the school year, beginning with the Ice Cream and Dessert Social held on October 2 during Back To School Night. This year's senior class broke, for the first time in many years, the tradition of holding a Rigatoni Feed on that night. Most of the money collected from the event became profit because most of the food was donated by the students, who made and brought the pies, cakes, and ice cream. A total of $487 was raised from that event. Other money raising activities held this year included the annual Sadie Hawkins Dance in February, and food sales held every other Friday, where the seniors enticed the taste buds of the student body with chow mein, fried rice, and many other delectable delicacies.

As they walked through the main hall during homecoming week, the Class of '92 found themselves back in the time of the "Wild West". The main hall had been transformed overnight with cornfields, barns, corrals, pig pens, and even a house of hospitality. Their skit brought the seniors to a "Showdown at the Ho-down." They square danced across the stage with their partners, as the villain, Millie (Tina Ebojo), appeared before the crowd and wanted Elvira's (John Florendo) man (William Wong). In the end both the good and the bad gals got together to dance to a final song, "Elvira", and the senior class won first place in the skit competition. With two additional first places for the noontime games and hall, the Class of 1992 became the overall winner of the Homecoming Week competition and $125 richer, keeping the tradition of the seniors winning Homecoming Week.

Traditions were kept and broken by the Class of '92, and it proved to work well for the seniors. Even though there were the problems of money, as well as other things throughout the year, the senior class came together to make their last year in high school the best they ever had.

fundamentals that last a lifetime

In English an array of many concepts were presented to students, such as the appreciation for literature, proper note taking, and studying skills that will last a lifetime.

Greeting incoming freshmen are English I teachers, Mr. Earl Rivard, Ms. Kristina Rylands, Mr. Marc Bainbridge, Mr. Michael Preminger, Mr. Warren Haber, Mrs. Helen Harris, and Ms. Jean Wood. Freshmen as well as all the other grades were required to read at least one work of Shakespeare. Ninth graders went through the classical tale of Romeo and Juliet. Other literary works they have read were The Pearl, The Miracle Worker, and To Kill A Mockingbird. This year teachers emphasized students working together, speaking more, and teaching themselves.

Second year students read literary works such as Medea and the Shakespearian classic, Julius Caesar, which was about a ruler who was assassinated for being "too ambitious." Other activities sophomores did in class included debating, acting out parts from books, plays, and/or drawings. This year Mr. Ron Lewis altered his classes by not writing as many referrals because he felt that they were ineffective. Instead he allowed students to fail. Other teachers who made up the sophomore English staff included Mr. Michael Preminger and Mr. Norman Robinson.

Juniors went through American literary works such as The Crucible, Scarlet Letter, Huckleberry Finn, as well as American novels. The students read short stories from famous American authors such as Ernest Hemingway. In this course the teachers hoped to have expanded the pupil's vocabulary. New this year to the Junior English staff were Mr. Warren Haber and Mr. David Payne, who joined veterans Ms. Jackie Davis-Martin and Mr. Michael Preminger.

Seniors went through their last courses of English in high school with teachers Ms. Jackie Davis-Martin, Mr. Mark Wainwright, and Mr. Robert Moorhead. The seniors last taste of Shakespeare came in the form of Macbeth and Hamlet. Aside from reading, the senior English classes practiced their skills on poetry and creative writing.

Whether it was Freshmen English or Senior English, students have had the best education from our experienced English staff. Students were able to expand on their horizons. Many more students have been inspired to succeed in their goals and dreams as a result of these wonderful teachers that taught the students how to expand their creativeness and abilities.

the past comes alive

Students at Encinal traveled back in time through the guidance of several history teachers. While textbooks contained factual information, students in Mr. Ed Winberg's U.S. History classes creatively relived the journeys of early explorers such as Columbus and Ponce de Leon through plays performed by fellow classmates.

The past of Alameda was revived as juniors concentrated on a unit entitled, "The History of Alameda". Interesting tidbits of information about the little island were brought out into the open. Who would have known that the first name given to Alameda in 1776 by the Spaniards was Encinal. Or that Alameda was formed geologically primarily by materials washed down from the Oakland Hills.

The seniors kept up with current events in various Government and Economics classes. Topics of discussion were derived from many political issues. Personal ideas were formed through the analysis of specific case studies and political parties, their beliefs and behaviors.

The true test of knowledge in many Social Studies classes were term papers. In AP U.S. History, twenty page papers were written on controversial topics such as abortion and environmental concerns. Lengthy term papers were also written by Economics students.

Due to changes in the state's framework, Encinal made a historical mark of its own. Freshmen World History was offered to a few select students in the 1991-1992 school year. The class was also given a face lift. With a new name, Modern World History, and a different focus, students were given an exciting look at the events of the twentieth century. Starting next year, the Social Studies course will be offered to all sophomores.

Historical happenings throughout the world became a part of everyday life. For students, Social Studies was a thrilling learning experience.

delving into a world of scientific knowledge

A wide variety of science classes offered at Encinal included everything from Biology to Chemistry, Marine Biology to Physics.

Biology was taught by the humorous Mr. Jon Medeiros and Mr. William Abromitis, Ms. Beth Anderson, Mr. Alan Nelson and new teacher Mr. Roger Wilpitz. The classes did the annual dissecting of the worms, grasshoppers, perches, and of course the frogs. Many videos were shown to the future scientists which related to their classwork. Students looked at animal life and studied the Rock Lorius at the nearby beach. They also measured sizes and figured the population of the inhabitants.

Marine Biology classes were held during first period when there was less wind present. Students frequently went to the beach to research the bay. Classes graphed the bay's low and high tides. They also studied birds in the area, their flight patterns, and how to identify them from a distance. Marine Biology learned how a compass worked as well as how to use it in the dark. Mr. Medeiros's class learned about catfish and made catfish dip.

Mr. Abromitis taught the Physiology classes, which performed experiments of stress, color blindness and monitored blood pressure. They dissected a sheep's heart, fetal pigs, and cow's eyes. Mr. Abromitis took his classes to an autopsy where they witnessed an open heart surgery. Students found both events to be memorable experiences. Towards the end of the year each student did a report on their favorite sport, in which they named all the muscles which were used in that particular sport.

In Chemistry students led by Ms. Anderson studied matter, its structure, and its properties. They also delved into the composition and the changes matter under went. With this information, they were able to put together molecular and ionic equations.

Students were challenged by the Physics class. They pondered over vectors, projectile motion, and the effect of gravity. Physics included the interaction of matter and energy, speed and velocity, which was taught by Mr. Nelson.

Throughout the year many future scientists plotted and solved many equations that equalled a greater understanding of the world around them.

stimulating mathematical minds

The cost of fuel for running a locomotive is proportional to 3/2 power of the speed of 25 miles per hour. Other fixed costs amount to an average of $100 per hour. Find the speed that will minimize the cost per hour.

Whether you were in Math Skills, Algebra, Geometry, Math Analysis, or Calculus, skills were being developed to solve this problem.

Math proved to be both challenging and intellectually stimulating. Under the direction of Ms. Ruth Hilberg, students participated in various math contests sponsored by the California Math League. Encinal's top math students competed with schools all over California six times throughout the year. The tests consisted of five math problems. These problems were not necessarily solved by math ability, but rather with cleverness. The results of the tests were compared to those of the other schools.

Due to state budget cuts, the math department had the highest student to teacher ratio in the entire history of Encinal. Many oversized classes ranged from thirty-three students and up, which made it difficult for both students and teachers.

The future of mathematics looks bright. The state of California is calling for many changes. The incorporation of calculators and computers into all math classes seems to be a definite plan. Students will soon be required to do writing in their math courses. Some other possibilities for the future are alternative means of student assessment, open book exams, and perhaps even untracked math classes in the ninth and tenth grades.

Regarding changes that she would like to see, Ms. Ruth Hilberg said, "I would like interesting math topics made available to more students. That requires removing some of the stress factors and other barriers."

All of Encinal's math students learned skills that will last a lifetime. Their newly acquired knowledge will bring about new career options and will be an integral part of their lives.

students master foreign languages

This year's many hours of lessons and oral exercises in the French and Spanish classes really helped students expand their knowledge of other languages. They experienced many ideas and cultures through foreign films, fiestas, and culture days.

With the help of Monsieur Glenn Fong, students in his French classes transformed from monolingual students to bilingual students. Every so often they would have culture days, or days in which students got to eat French bread, pastries, croissants, and listen to French music.

Oral participation was a big part of the class. Students would have passages to memorize, and then present them in class, while Mr. Fong would video tape them. By the end of the year, students were able to have conversations in Francais.

If French wasn't for you, Encinal also offered several levels of Spanish taught by Senora Keri Spaulding, Senora Maria Sanchez-Wright, Senora Jean Rubin, Senor Earl Rivard, and Senora Barbara Joliffe. Students in the first year classes learned the basic reading, writing, and speaking, Second year students learned how to conjugate verbs. Third year students were usually able to communicate, read, write, and write well. During the fourth and fifth year, students tended to be fluent in Spanish and spend most of their time reading short stories, poems, and various literary pieces.

During the holidays, teachers and students got together and prepared Spanish holiday meals. In December of 1991, Mrs. Sanchez-Wright's class prepared a traditional Spanish breakfast. They had huevos con salsa, arroz con pollo, chocolate caliente, y dulces, translated in English means, eggs with salsa, chicken with rice, hot chocolate, and sweet pastries.

No matter what class one took, Spanish or French, each class offered a diversity of cultural experiences. Students had fun, and they knew a whole other language!!

a year to be fit

Physical Education, fun for the fit! This school year Physical Education featured many health oriented, body building, and sweat stimulating activities.

In the great outdoors students played a variety of sports including flag football, weight training, and tennis. Badminton, floor hockey and volleyball were team oriented sports played in the controlled environment of the gym.

When Spring came around, with it came the beginning of the annual Presidential Fitness Tests. Students tried to show their ability in completing these tests as best they could. The athletes were tested on the one-mile run, pull-ups, situps, and flexibility. They unanimously cited the one-mile run as the most grueling and physically challenging test to endeavor. This run was considered a sometimes "impossible feat".

Returning teachers to the physical education department this year included: Mr. Jerry Cvecko, Mr. Dave Johns, and Mr. Jim Saunders. The newest addition to this department was Mrs. Debbie Budd, who previously taught at Wood Middle School. She blends right in with the rest of the Department staff.

When asked how he liked Mrs. Budd, sophomore Ruben Tilos exclaimed exhuberently, "She's super smart, she knows all the muscle groups!"

When P.E. Head Mr. Cvecko was asked how Physical Education courses were going to help the kids later in life this was his reply.

"In this class we are teaching the kids a lifetime of fitness. They are taught nutrition and how to lead a healthy life."

busy, busy year for jrotc.

Turkey shoots, helicopter rides, and dances along with rifle drills, competitions, and inspections were the combined elements that produced the 1991-92 R.O.T.C. year.

The first of the many activities of the year took the cadets to Camp Parks, where they ran through five different courses that challenged their minds as well as their physical abilities.

The Naval Air Station in Alameda invited Encinal's cadets for their yearly helicopter ride around the bay. On October 19, around thirty to forty cadets were taken in a CH-53 transport which flew them above the Golden Gate Bridge as well as other parts of the Bay Area.

In November, R.O.T.C. sponsored their annual Turkey Shoot. This event, which was the biggest fundraiser of the year, netted them more than $200 in profit. Five of the lucky people who participated walked away with the satisfaction that they were able to hit the paper target as well as having a little extra money in their pockets.

Next came the bi-annual event in December, the Skyline Drilldown. There, four of Encinal's cadets placed in the top ten in the individual competitions and first and second place in the squad drills.

By the end of January, the rifle team had competed in at least five matches in shooting. Most of the eleven member team were able to score above 210 out of the 300 possible, and of those eleven, two of those members, Paul Johnson and John Sitchon were able to score above the 250 mark.

A competition was held at Encinal's gym during the month of May where each company showed off their skills in academics, squads, individual, and platoon drills in order to win the Mayor's trophy. Last year's winner was Company C.

Most of the students of J.R.O.T.C. said that this was a fun year. They learned new leadership abilities, something almost all cadets would have learned from all the activities this year.

flying high with the ehs music department

This was certainly an exciting year for Encinal's Band & Choir. Head of the department, Mr. Armen Phelps, arranged for a week - long trip in May to L.A. As an added bonus, they stayed overnight at Disneyland on the way back.

Our Band actually did a lot of travelling this year. Members could be seen decked out in their new band uniforms, flanked by the music department's newest addition, the flag team. In October they travelled to Santa Cruz for a statewide band competition and enjoyed some afternoon fun at the Santa Cruz Beach Boardwalk. Jazz Band competed in four different festivals; one of which included an overnight trip to Reno. Not to be outdone, the Choir also competed in various choral competitions.

That's not to say that the music department wasn't active here at Encinal. In October the Band also held a Fall Concert which was well attended and earned the music department some extra money; as did the Christmas Concert in December, the Winter Concert in February, the Spring Concert in April, and the Band Revue in May. "Despite all the budget cuts," Phelps commented, "the Band has come out really well. I'm really looking forward to next year!"

a year in the arts

"All the world is a stage, and we are but its players."

-William Shakespeare

If this is so, the contributions of Mr. Bob Moorhead, Mrs. Rachel Robinson, and Mr. Norm Robinson are among the most important this school has to offer.

Mr. Moorhead not only teaches "acting", but tries to overcome shyness in students and enhances their ability to work with others as well. Students of the theater were given opportunities to perform plays that were entertaining to all this year. Moreover, they were able to further participate in the performing arts by writing some plays of their own.

Public speaking was led once again by the venerable Mr. Robinson. He gave his young speakers a taste of giving speeches to the camera and a chance to debate with their fellow classmates. Travel was a part of public speaking as well as members of a class gave speeches to the Rotary and the Lions Club. Who knows, maybe someday one of these eloquent speakers will be talking to a much larger audience, like, the whole country ...

Hey, don't forget art! Yeah, art! Students of Mrs. Robinson found that it's not all about doodling and fingerpainting. They found that art has a deeper meaning. Many discovered that it is art that reaches into the depths of our souls and illuminates the true meaning of the cosmos. It is from art that all answers are drawn and all questions are asked. The question to everyone's answer is usually asked from within, a picture is worth a thousand words ... and hey, fingerpainting is a blast!!

another means of preserving memories

Lights, Camera, Action! A new way of preserving high school memories came to Encinal during the 1991-1992 school year. Using some of the latest technology, the EHS video yearbook was like a living version of the conventional yearbook for many of the students who paid the thirty-five dollars to obtain it. Headed by drama teacher Mr. Robert Moorhead, the video yearbook staff (which was composed of four volunteers) put in countless hours covering school events. It was the hope of Mr. Moorhead to continue this project in the years to come, because for every three years that they produced the average, forty-five minute tape the school would receive, free of charge, the video camera they had used.

Entitled "A Year in Your Life", the more traditional yearbook also focused on high school memories. Many changes were made throughout the year, however. Just two of the changes seen this year were transferring the Horizon from the previous company, Taylor Publishing, to a brand-new company for Encinal: Jostens Publishing Company, and a new MacIntosh computer to assist in the designing aspect of the yearbook. Through the encouragement of the new advisor, Ms. Jean Wood, the Horizon staff swelled to the largest number in many years. Only three of these students were returning members, two of which were the co-editors, seniors Bing Barcega and Celia Ho.

The Encinal newspaper also experienced some major changes this year under the leadership of editor Seaver Chan. The journalism class received a new instructor, Mr. Ron Lewis. He, with the help of the three veteran journalism students, managed to successfully redesign the entire format of this monthly publication. The best change of all, however, according to many EHS students, was the change of the name of the paper from The Echo to the old favorite, The Jetsetter.

skills for a real world

As Encinal's students were moving into the 21st century, technology and the job requirements were changing. Business and technical skills became a required aspect of adult life, and Encinal adapted to meet the challenge with computers, word processing and drafting classes. Enthusiastic and ready to learn, students were taught to keep up with the adult world with skills that would keep them afloat.

The Mechanical Drawing classes, advised by Mr. Eugene Ford, focused their attention on designs of objects that run the modern technological world. Nut and bolts to houses and plots plans were drawn to perfection.

The Drafting II classes, who are more advanced, used computer - aided drafting design (CAD) systems. Air brush illustration, model building, and ink lettering projects were done.

In Keyboarding, techniques in touch typing were learned. Students were forced to keep away from the "hunting and picking" method of typing and stick to memorization of letter key positions.

Students enrolled in Computers were taught to design their own programs. Using the BASIC language, students used their Tandy computers to learn all they could.

Computers in Business was a class that was devoted to teaching students how to use the computers in everyday business life. They learned how to use spread sheets, data bases, and desktop publishing programs.

In Word Processing, students who knew how to type, learned to specialize in word processing programs like Work Perfect and Desktop Publishing.

The students who took these classes left them with a better sense of the real world. During the courses they learned leadership and occupational skills that would help them acquire many jobs in the future.

demonstrating creativity and talent

Talented and skillful described the students in the Regional Occupational Program (R.O.P.) classes of 1991-92. Under the guidance of Mr. Terry Brandon, Mrs. Christine Dea, and Mrs. Jamie Wong, the pupils were able to demonstrate their creativity and originality through their work. Each and every person transformed ideas into art.

The food preparation class instructed by Mr. Terry Brandon often catered food for games, lunches, fundraisers, and The Blue Bistro. Juniors and seniors expanded their horizons with the encouragement of Chef Brandon. Among those who took part in this festive class, food prep, were Jason Skinner, Jamaal Pete, and Junior Taua. Many learned the ins and outs of how to cook as well as how to succeed in becoming a chef.

Mrs. Christine Dea's floral design classes learned the different methods and trades of the floral industry. Students were able to practice their skills on items they kept for themselves. While the first year students were busy learning, second year students, Christine Cogan, Maryann Anderson, Tenisha Byrd, Lidia Guzman, Peggy Barnett, and Kien To, spent time filling orders for fresh flowers arrangements, wreaths, weddings and various other items. These second year pupils also set up displays in the showcase located in the mainhall. Mrs. Dea and her floral classes worked on wreaths during the whole month of December. The pupils worked long and hard and were able to finish an order of approximately two hundred wreaths for the staff, parents and the community.

The fashion arts classes taught by Mrs. Jamie Wong began its year by learning how to operate the sewing machines. Within a couple weeks the first year students had a chance to use the sewing machines making hair accessories, earring travel cases, and paper back book covers. Second year pupils, Jackie Bedford, Tenisha Byrd, Azeb Misgun, Chanel Crusto, and Rosalie Krenn, went on to more complicated projects. Such projects were adding lace and other various decorative items along the edges of their paper back book covers. Later in the year the fashion art and clothing class helped make the costumes for the spring musical, "The Little Shop of Horror", that was brought to us by the drama department.

The help of the R.O.P. instructors enabled the pupils to finish the courses with new skills and talents. Students learned skills that will enable them to find future jobs. Those that completed the class received a certificate of completion.

Some of the industrial education classes offered at Encinal were auto shop, wood shop, horticulture, ceramics and jewelry.

Robert Ruark, art department chairperson at Encinal taught two classes designed for students interested in hand - building of clay and metal products. Ceramics, a favorite at Encinal, taught the basics of making clay coils, slabs, and pinchpots and progressed to more advanced work and the use of the potter's wheel. For the would - be Cartier dealer, Encinal offered jewelry making. The skilled jeweler eventually crafted a metal ring, a most desired accomplishment for this class.

Mr. Gene Evans' auto shop class learned about the repair and maintenance of cars. A first - year auto shop student began by taking apart a model engine and advanced to hands - on training with actual cars. The advanced auto shop students perfected their techniques on students' cars (under the watchful eye of Mr. Evans of course).

Rodel Flores, advanced auto shop student said, "This class is a workshop for me, I'm almost the teacher."

Both beginning and advanced wood shop students produced an exciting array of artfully crafted woodworks ranging from bookends to tables and beyond.

Horticulture was a class for the promising landscape contractor or those students interested in working with their hands in an outdoor atmosphere. The students maintained Encinal's own greenhouse and built all of it's surrounding structures.

One horticulture student, Karen Shyner said, "I enjoy planting things and one day hope to make it part of my career."

Harry Mitchell enjoys the applied academics program as it gives him a chance to work with his hands and be outdoors.

These classes are imperative for those students interested in regional occupations and to further their knowledge in basic skills needed in the "real world."

powerful few lead student body

From day one, the Encinal High School's 1991-1992 Student Government class had been on the ball, starting with it's traditional opening dance, which helped to raise needed funds to produce such fun filled events as Homecoming Week, the Big Game, and the many Spirit Days.

Through the combined efforts of the ASB officers and the hard working Student Government class, many events were planned through to make 1991-1992 a memorable year. Among these events was the Homecoming Dance. With the help of Dance Party U.S.A., the class turned the gym into an exciting dance club. For the first time, the students watched and danced to their favorite videos. Professional photography was also available to students, done by Harrell Studios.

The Student Government class provided many exhilarating games, such as the Mummy Wrap, stuffing a turkey, and bobbing for apples, during lunch. Kristin Heese, Fall ASB Spirit Commissioner, was responsible for these games. Weekly a variety of music was played during lunch for entertainment.

Aside from all the fun and games, the Student Government was also involved in numerous community projects, including the annual Blood Drive, Holiday canned food drive, and the serving of Thanksgiving dinner at the Mastick Senior Center.

The class was also responsible for providing the monthly assemblies, which this year included the Homecoming assembly, and the unforgettable January Spirit assembly, which focused on school and individual class spirit.

In late March the class held their Leadership Exchange, which consisted of two other high schools, Alameda High and Island High. This exchange enabled the three different Government classes to learn and help each other with problems that arose for each high school.

This year the class went on a weekend retreat. With the tremendous amount of stress that the year brought, the class enjoyed their two days of peace and rest.

The Student Government was a hard working, determined class, whose goals were to make school a better, more fun, and cleaned environment for all students to be in. That was what the Student Government class accomplished for the school year.

determined juniors double fun and money

The class of 1993 embarked upon the new year with enthusiasm and motivation. Their goals for the year were to do well on class competitions, raise money, and to have fun. This year the Juniors were more determined to win in Homecoming against their rivals, the senior class. With hardwork and creativity, the class came up with their theme "Follow the Yellow Brick Road" in which they followed it all the way to place second.

Coming in second was not mere luck. It took countless hours of hardwork and preparations. The dedicated Juniors showed up after school where they worked on their skit and hallway decorations. On the day of the Homecoming assembly, the Juniors managed to create a setting in their hallway similiar to the movie "Wizard of Oz." The floor was adorned with bricks made of yellow paper and along the sides of the hallway was a house, a scarecrow, and a tin man. Adding the final touch they created a Saphire City, which hovered over the heads of students.

Their skit was a whimsical rendition of the "Wizard of Oz" in which a student of Encinal High School traveled to Oz where she defeated the evil head cheerleader of Alameda High School, so that she could go home.

Starting the year with $1250 in their class account, the Juniors had a look of anticipation in their eyes. To increase their financial status, food was sold during lunch every other Friday. The third annual Park Clean-Up was held by the class where students picked and cleaned the litter of Washington Park. With also sponsoring the last school dance, the class was able to double their treasury by the end of the school year.

jets fly high

In one of the toughest high school football leagues in the Bay Area, the once mighty Jets fell into an off season. With a 1-6 regular season record, the Jets found themselves almost last in their division.

The first regular season game was against their nemesis Alameda High School. Unfortunately that was also the site their first loss. Although the Jets opened their second possession with an Andre Shelton touchdown run, the Hornets scored three of their own in the later stages of the game. With an addition of a safety, Alameda prevailed with a score of 7-22.

Things didn't improve over the following week. The Jets' next opponent was Albany. Albany's defense prevailed over the Jets- allowing only one touchdown. Although the Jet defense was having a field day, they did give up a pair of touchdowns for an Albany victory with a score of 6-14.

With the Jets' standing at 0-2, Coach Schram desperately needed a win. The first home game of the season at Alameda College was a one to remember. In addition to the Jet defense, that didn't allow so much as a fieldgoal, the sleeping offense, led by new quarterback Jin Wu Kim, woke in a fury of touchdowns. With four first half scores, the Jets were on the way to a long awaited victory. The final score was 47-0.

Spirits high, the Jets rolled into Kennedy High School with victory in their minds. Unfortunately the win would somehow elude them. The Jets rode all the way into the final seconds of the fourth quarter with a score of 13-20. The Jets had their final possession of the game needing a touchdown. They drove long and hard but lost possession and the game due to an interception.

The final three games of the season didn't seem to be any different from the previous, the Jets held tough the first half but faltered in the second. The final scores were 7-23 versus O'Dowd, 12-47 versus St Marys, and 8-28 versus Piedmont.

With the last games behind them, the Jets' record stood at 1-6. Despite the standings, the Jets flew high in every game they played.

tough times loom over the jets

This year's JV football team started off the season with the hopes of a victorious season, but that feeling was soon fading after they lost to De Anza 6-12 and Mt. Diablo 14-48. Then came that fateful day against Arroyo where, with good offense as well as defense, the Jets ran away victorious 41-0. Even though they lost to Alameda 6-24, they still had the feeling that luck was on their side.

And it did seem that luck was on their side as they won against Albany 26-16, Richmond 28-0, and against Kennedy 26-19.

With a three game winning streak, they tried but could not succeed in beating Bishop O'Dowd. Throughout the game, each team was scoreless until the fourth quarter, when Encinal had the ball. They tried to go for a touchdown, but the throw was intercepted and ran back for 83 yards that ended the game for a loss to Encinal 0-6.

The last game of the season was against undefeated Piedmont. With great plays and a strong defense, Encinal was able to keep Piedmont from scoring and ended the game with a tie. Robert Bresler, one of the players of the team, said the whole JV defensive unit should be credited for keeping Piedmont from scoring because of key sacks and the three interceptions they made that day.

As the game came to an end, so did the season and that left them with a record of 4-5-1.

As for the top scorers of the season, they were Jeremy Lang, Damien Upsher, and Mori SueSue.

Although the record for Frosh team was 1-6, the best game played was against town rival, Alameda. During the game, quarterback Felix Santos threw two touchdown passes to James Finley to win the game 24-6.

Despite the records of the JV and the Frosh teams, they seem to have a promising future for next season.

our best foot forward

Why? Why did they do it? What was the attraction to busting your butt, running mile after mile, over hills and sand, only to end up right back where you started from! To the average person it only meant insanity; but to a cross country runner, there was purpose, there was satisfaction, and there was addiction.

It all began with the grueling workouts, such as one mile intervals and up to ten mile runs. Usually the team practiced on their home course, Crown Memorial Beach, but they also practiced at Lake Chabot, Redwood Park, and upon the "steep" dusty trails of Joaguin Miller Park. Coach Dennis Knights and assistant coach John Ryder guided the way to the teams victories.

The boys won four out of their seven meets. They wiped St. Josephs and Albandy each by more than eleven points. The Jets also won aganist Alameda by four points. Veteran runner Esayas Yohannes did an outstanding job making "All League" and placing third over all in the North Coast Regionals were the team placed tenth.

The girls put forth an excellent effort, but due to an incomplete team, were unable to win a meet. They consisted of four new runners, Mary Malone, Amy Yuen, Jennifer Scheininger, and Katie Cary. Though there were few, they strutted there stuff! Malone was just two minutes off from the home course record and Yuen made "All League".

After many pairs of dirty socks went through the laundry and the long hot runs had ended, teammembers kicked back and were proud of what they had done and overjoyed that it was finished.

jet polo creates waves

Water Polo was tough. It was hard work. It was pure drudgery. It was, well, after all, just plain fun.

As Nick Pivonka sums up very nicely, "We definitely had our moments."

What was water polo really about?

"It's about time, dedication, and lots and lots of work." states Coach Jerry Cvecko. "It's about learning to execute in the water. That includes skill in ball-handling, individual offense and defense, as well as team offense and defense."

Since the start of the water polo program four years ago, this year's team was without a doubt the best yet. Jet poloists have won 70% of their games this year compared to last year's 33%. They placed fourth in the East Shore Athletic League and qualified for North Coast where they ended the season with a 12th place finish.

With the close of the season, came the end of an era. This was the last season for the first generation players who were John Florendo, William Wong, and Eben Rogers. What was it that made these players stick it out for four years of water polo? What was it that made anyone stick it out for even one season? It couldn't have been the 16 hours a week of practice they put in or the feeling of sheer exhaustion after a hard fought game.

As Ciaran Ennis pointed out for us, "To the water polo player there's satisfaction, there's purpose, and there is the addiction to the game."

This year's team captains were Alex Kantorov and William Wong, also voted the most inspirational. All League and MVP was Eben Rogers. Most improved was Ciaran Ennis and the Player of the Year was Ilya Kantorov.

lady jets volley for fun

The varsity volleyball team experienced a season of near misses. With a point here and a point there the three and twelve record might have been reversed. The record, however, does not reflect the jet's well played, hard fought season.

A good example of this can be found in the final game of the year. The lady jets found themselves tied eleven to eleven in the third game of a three game set. A couple of bad breaks later it was all over as the jets barely gave it to Bishop O'Dowd, one of the best teams of the league this year.

Of course, in the black of night the stars twinkled bright. Marama Gifford took all league. Tina Ebojo and Farzana Nabi also received honorable mentions by shining bright and playing their best. Other players that played with all their hearts in '91 included: Lisa Fernandez, Andrea Tenorio, Teri Schmitz, Rizalyn Esteban, and Andi Fernandez.

The junior varsity team record did reflect a well played season. Coach Debbie Budd said they listened and followed instruction exquisitely (this is essential for good team play). Kim Sablan, Yvette Castellanos, Michelle Venable, Melissa Milam, Concetta Davis, Tracie Jamison, Judalon Winstead, and Alicia Lengel all gave outstanding performances for a fine eight and seven record. Also contributing to the effort were Angie Taylor, Dawn Milne, Shellee Hogue, Maryann Piatos, and Feliza Cruz.

If '91 can be any indication of things to come, '92 should be another year to remember!

"There is no love in tennis!", exclaimed junior Malaika Fisher. This seemed to be the motto during the 1991-92 tennis season.

Both the men's and women's tennis teams practiced everyday after school under the watchful eyes of Coach Al Rebensdorf. His expertise provided many with new techniques. The goal of the practices was to challenge fellow teammates to an invigorating game of tennis in efforts to climb up the tennis "ladder" by beating their opponents. On each "rung" on the "ladder" sat a dedicated player ready to defend his position on the team.

With only a few returning players, the women's tennis season was off to a rocky start. But with many new faces, there was an overpowering sense of team spirit, which regardless of wins or losses, created a friendly atmosphere.

Their counterparts, the men's tennis team had better luck. Their five returning players were within the top six of the tennis "ladder". Through three years of hard work, senior Alan Aniciete was number one on the team. Rounding out the top five respectively, were seniors Mike Hernandez, Waclaw Czarnocki, Tony Chop, and sophomore Ruben Tilos.

With the addition of many underclassmen, who will have a chance to perfect their game, the future of tennis looks bright.

high flyin' jets dribble, pass, and dunk

The 1991-92 athletic season was a strenuous one for the Junior Varsity and Varsity Boys Basketball Teams. Each team practiced long and hard to beat all their opponents. Improvement was made on the courts, although scores did not reflect the improvement of the teams. Coach Mark Wainwright encouraged all his "boys" to be the best they could be and to try the hardest they could. Never was there once when the Coach gave up on his team, nor the team giving up on the coach.

every game was a test for the Boys Basketball Teams. Each athlete had to prove that they were as good as they said they were. Sweat and energy swamped the courts each and every game. Anxiety was within the crowds. Shouts of encouragement provided the players with the will to go on.

The action on the courts was intense. Determination was in the eyes of all the players. Encinal Jets were determined to steal the ball away from anyone who dared to step on the courts. And with that ball, the Jests would score their way to a victory. Although the Jets did not score their way to the North Coast Playoffs, we are still proud of our team.

Congratulations to the Junior Varsity, Varsity, and Freshman Boys Basketball Teams, for all the effort that was made. Good Luck next year.

The East Shore Athletic League a.k.a. ESAL is the home division to one of the toughest girls' basketball team in the state; the Encinal Jets. The Lady Jets toughed it out this season with twenty-one wins and five losses. Out of those, they played fourteen league games in which they won twelve games and only lost two, putting them into first place in the league, and a bye into the North Coast tournament. "Friendship and organization," was what teammate Andrea Tenorio, Charlene Moore, and Demanesse Dollison agreed upon as the key to their teams successful season.

The starters for the girl's Varsity were Charlene Moore, Judy Rodriguez, Julie Wagner, Tarsha Burshon, and Nichole McRae. The team averaged about fifty-two points per game. Julie Wagner was the league leader in scoring with 18.1 points per game. Tarsha Burshon was the league leader in assists with 7.4 assists per game, and Nicole McRae was the leagues top rebounder with 13.5 rebounds per game. These five girls started out playing together on the Encinal's girls team, during their freshman year. The coaches knew that they would come to dominate the ESAL by their senior year. The fact that they're so close on and off the court is what enabled them to win so many games. Sheer heart, desire, and unity is what pulled them through the many close games like the fifty-three to fifty victory against HolyNames. Though these five seniors were the main stream of the girls' basketball team, you cannot forget the girls who came off the bench, played their hearts out and averaged over twenty points a game.

Another season of girls' basketball is over, and they were competitors all the way to the finals.

finesse, strength and stamina

Wrestling is a sport that demands the aspects of having finesse to perfectly execute a move, strength to force the move and stamina to keep putting moves on your opponent.

With this in mind Coach Neil Santo Domingo devised a rigorous training program. Starting off with warm-ups such as stretching and push-ups they would then move on to drills practiced on a daily basis giving wrestlers the finesse they needed to be competitive. After these drills they would work on stamina, wrestling non-stop for about half and hour. As for strength, mentally and physically, these were worked on more independently. Before matches the whole team would get their teammates hyped.

Jet wrestlers with these qualities included the triple threat of juniors consisting of Co-Captains Ron Chico, Isaac Irvine and Ian Dewey. Dewey especially showed off these qualities at the Las Lomas Invitational. At this tournament he pinned three wrestlers in about two minutes en-route to winning the title. Adding experience to that Triple Threat were returning wrestlers Robert Bresler and Mike Madero. Also Tony Sandoval, a former Jet wrestler who placed third in the league last year, assisted in coaching. Future stars may include freshman Jimmie Loto, Dan Aponte and Willie Johnson who showed promise through out the season. This year's team included something different, a female. Karmen Fields was the only female wrestler on the team. Being female didn't make a difference though; she acted and was treated like just one of the guys.

Even though Jet wrestlers had a poor league record, they still bettered last year's record with a win over Campolindo. Coaches Santo Domingo, Tony Sandavol, LaRon Smith, Jack Schram and Bill Harper have high hopes of finishing well in the Foothill Division Finals.

Soccer season began mid-November when second year coaches, Carlos Perez and Robert Young began daily practices. The Willie Stargell Field was under reconstruction therefore practices were held at Rittler Park. Fortunately, the Jets were allowed home games to be played on their new grown field.

The girls' soccer season began with a victory when they blew away Albany High, six to one. With a line up of only nine returning players and the loss of a strong defensive line, the Jet girls could only hope for new talent. They gained promising new players such as Charlene Michael, a versatile freshman able to play both defense and offense.

With a strong forward line dominated by the Fernandez sisters, Andi and Lisa, Encinal had many shots on the goal. Veterans Teri Schmitz and Co-Captain Kim Absher controlled the defense, backed up by the improved play of Co-Captain Malaika Fisher, Encinal's leading goalie.

Returning coach Robert Young was assisted by volunteer coach Michael Bennett, a valuable asset to the team efforts.

Senior Marlena Frietas sees a bright future for the girls soccer team and says, "I wish I was a freshman so I'd be around to finally see our team make it to the play-offs."

Although they suffered many losses, they kept their point difference to a slim margin. Despite their win-loss record, the Jet girls continued to work together as a team.

The boys' team began their season with a close victory against Salesian High, one to zero. This season brought in new experienced seniors to help the team, Aron Yohannes, right wing, and Wais Shirgul, sweeper. A strong defensive line of Jacob Adina, Emal Numan, and Esayas Yohannes supported returning goalie Zaid Rahmani in over 200 saves.

Captains Arnaraldo Soriano and Diego Moraga led the forward line with an outstanding 12 goals scored each. Moraga was unanimously voted All-League for his expert skill as Encinal's leading center forward.

The last game of the year against St. Elizabeth was considered the best effort of the year. The score was 9-0 favoring the Jet boys. Hard work paid off for the Encinal boys, ending the year with a respectable five wins, nine losses, and one tie.

a year of cheer

1! 2! 3! 4! Jets! Score! was just one of the cheers this year's spirit squads used to rouse school spirit. The dedicated girls (no guys, unfortunately) practiced two hours every day after school perfecting dance routines and cheers. They also conducted various fundraisers in order to cover the $300.00 that each girl had to pay for their uniform, as well as various other expenses. For the varsity football cheerleaders, these other expenses included weekly lunches for the football players. When asked what she did to provide lunches for her guardian angel, varsity cheerleader Stefanie Cruz replied, "I stretched a 16 ounce bag of chips until it squeaked. I managed to make it last four weeks."

Five separate spirit squads were chosen this last year. They were the varsity pom-pom, varsity and J.V. football cheerleaders, as well as the varsity and J.V. basketball cheerleaders. You might be wondering, why not just keep the same squads all year? One reason is that many football season spirit leaders are worn out by the time basketball season arrives. This year's squad was no exception, and no football cheerleaders tried out for the basketball line. "This year's season was a lot more difficult than usual. We hired a coach, Lori Soika, who taught us a lot of great stunts, but these stunts were very tiring. I even broke a finger doing a back flip dismount! I just wanted to break to gear up for next year," explained head varsity cheerleader, Melanie Hawkins. Students who saw the spirit leaders' Homecoming routine can't argue about the difficult stunts the football cheerleaders performed. Extensions with cradle drops impressed everyone, while the two basket tosses (those really high throws) caused grasps of astonishment from the audience. It's no wonder that many of the spirit leaders were tired!

This year's basketball cheerleaders did a great job of bringing the crowd to its feet at the basketball games. Although they did not perform stunts, the work of the cheerleaders was not easy. The sacrificed an hour of their time every day after school, and even more time on game days. Yet with little time for anything but cheerleading, most of the girls still managed to keep their grades up.

Our E.H.S. cheerleaders have certainly done their part to dispel the image of cheerleaders as brainless airheads. Their hard work and dedication have classified them as true athletes.

puttin' on the hits

Through many hours of practice and hard work, Encinal's baseball teams opened their 1992 season. With the training and assistance from Coach Jim Saunders (Varsity) and Coach Ted Hall (Junior Varsity), both teams practiced until 5 o'clock in the evening to strive for their wins. Not only did it take practice to play baseball, but also time, skill, and commitment. Not to mention energy!! Varsity practiced at Encinal's field, while Junior Varsity went to Woodstock. Watching from the side, one can see the speed of a pitch, or the power of a hit.

Crowds cheering and the crack of a bat were sounds heard at Varsity's game versus San Marin, which was a success. Early in the morning, the team met at school, piled into a couple of vans, and took off to Marin County to meet their rivals. Varsity won with a score of 8-7.

For Junior Varsity, the first week or two, was "under the weather," but the coach said they looked promising. Some of the stars on the team were, Joeddie Mendoza, starting third baseman, Slater Vere, first baseman, Derek Huddleston, and Nick Strang. Out of 50 boys who tried out for the team, only 19 were fortunate enough to make it.

Over the summer, Encinal decided that it was time to get a new field. The old field was full of potholes and was uneven. Starting in June of 1991, construction began. The new and improved field was completed in the fall of 1991. In February, the new field was opened with a ceremony, and there was a scrimmage against Arroyo High School. The field is now smooth, and is easy to run across safely!

lady jets looking to repeat

Expectations were high as the Jets were the defending East Shore Athletic League Champions. With a loss of ten players, ten veterans set out to lead the Jets to another successful season for Girls Softball.

Practice was every day at Washington Park beginning sixth period athletics until 5:30, under the supervision of Coach Dave Johns. Defensively the players worked on fielding balls such as pop-ups, short-hops, groundballs, fly-balls, and line-drives. The ladies would also work on simulated game situations to perfect their ability to cover territory. Offensively the Lady Jets hit off not only live pitching but the batting machine as well to insure that they had the hand-eye coordination to hit any speed of pitching. The Lady Jets also worked on bunting, slap-hitting, and opposite hand slap-hitting. The Lady Jets were blessed with amazing grace and speed on the base-paths.

The first problem the Lady Jets had to solve this year was finding a pitcher. Veteran Charlene Moore seemed to be the team's ace, but a determined rookie Teri Schmitz showed a lot of promise.

Being the two, three, and four batters, Andi Fernandez, Melissa Langford, and Seaver Chan proved to be the team's best hitters during preseason play.

With the combination of exploding offense and strong defense the Lady Jets were well on their way to repeating as ESAL Champions.

watch the birdie

Once again becoming one of Encinal's largest sports teams, the badminton season began with traditional overload of people. This year's badminton tryouts buzzed with even more anxious people than previously.

Coach Jerry Ludy was faced with the difficult and unpleasant decisions of cutting players. Out of the unbelievable fifty-six people who tried out for the team, only forty-five were talented, and coordinated enough, to make the final cuts.

After the initial cuts, the badminton team could be found in the EHS gym daily from 3:00 PM to 5:30 PM; those even more dedicated would often stay until about 6:00 PM. During this time the team practiced footing, balance, and hitting.

Physical endurance and power slamming was also a top priority. Coach Ludy utilized the effectiveness of drills more this year than last. The training included running, footwork and balance drills, and strategy.

With mostly new faces on the team, Coach Ludy had to depend on his returning players. Ping Wong, Alex Le, Johnny Yee, and Tina Ebojo were among his best players. Ludy would definitely need them for the season because of the tough competition. A victory over Berkeley, their nemesis, would not be easy, but it wasn't inconceivable either.

Without a real sports budget to work with, the team raised money through candy sales. The money was used for several needed accessories. Among them included team T-shirts, trophies, and a party at the end of year.

The standard ushering in of spring sports was livened up with a different kind of flying birds- these could fly at speeds of over seventy miles per hour.

Many people would consider running in continuous circles, jumping, leaping and throwing at the longest distance insane or odd, but for some there was a certain fascination and thrill accompanied by it. As quoted from Coach Donald Grant, "There is no other sport in which you can have two people, side by side, pushing with all they've got. It can get to be extremely intense at times." Track and field is a sport in which there are numerous events, sixteen total, so the variety of talent in the sport is unlimited.

Practice took place Monday through Saturday at a minimum of two hours each day. It didn't start until 3:00 due to the inability of students to receive sixth period physical education. The participants came each day anyway, despite the lost time. Practices included some stretching, a two mile warm-up, high knees, fudder kick, lots of intervals, and a little more stretching. Meets were held once or twice a week, and those who competed on Saturday invitationals had a chance to win medals.

There were many new runners this year, including more girls on this year's team compared to last year's three participants. The few returning athletes were Robeson Perry, Esayas Yohannes, and Andre Shelton who planned to compete in the State Meet for the second year in a row. These dedicated runners were guided by coaches Jack Schram, Cynthia Fullword, and (commonly called "Grampa" by many students) Donald Grant. After the dust settled, there were a few more students with grins on their faces and a couple of medals to show off.

What did fins, paddles, buoys, and Bingo have in common? They were all factors of the Encinal High swim team's astounding success. Hundreds of laps using paddles and buoys strengthened the swimmer's arms while sprints with fins perfected their strokes!

What did bingo have to do with swimming? Well, every month the Boosters held an evening of Bingo and gave the proceeds to the athletic teams, depending on the amount of Bingo tickets they each sold. The swim team manage to sell almost eighty tickets, resulting in nearly one thousand dollars for their team. This money was used to buy new equipment for the aquatics department.

"Workouts left me exhausted, mentally and physically," said Junior Terra Powers, commenting on her swimming experience. "I just couldn't handle the monotony of swimming up and down the pool for hours at a time." So what did the swimmers think about while practicing? "I sang a song in my head," replied Tia Denny, a junior. Another junior Melanie Hawkins said, "I would memorize my lines for the musical," Obviously workouts themselves weren't too exciting, but meets were another story.

"When I'm at a meet all I can think about is putting on a great performance for my fellow teammates and helping them win their meet. I don't think about anything else." said Junior Ciaran Ennis, one of the two fastest swimmers on the team. Attitudes like these helped to carry the swim team through their outstanding season.

a psychedelic experience with hippies

Peace, love, and happiness started out the class of 1994's sophomore year. According to class Spirit Officer, Lisa Fernandez, the class brainstormed and came up with their theme - "Class of 1994-Hippies."

During Homecoming, their hallway was dramatically transformed from a dull, drab atmosphere into a psychedelic experience. Beads strung from the ceiling, painted peace signs, and footprints covered the hall's floors and windows. Although it looked excellent, class President, Dawn Milne commented, "At first we didn't have many people involved, but in the end we all pulled together for a great Homecoming!" Sarah Cary added, "This year's Homecoming was 100% better for our class than last year."

Their skit consisted of eight sophomores dressed in their "jammies", who boogied down to "Word to the Mutha." Crazy "happy hippies" then stormed the stage to join in to the songs "People are Strange" and "Here Comes the Sun". The Sophomore Class certainly deserved recognition for their hard work and long hours that they put in, often arriving to school at 6am for practice while most others were still sleeping. All in all it was a great Homecoming for the class.

The class showed their unity and spirit by dressing for spirit days, participating in the class spirit cheer, which was led by Toshia Charles and Lou Rivera, working together throughout the year planning for Winter Ball, and joining in on the noontime games during monthly spirit days. Andi Fernandez, class Vice-President, commented on the year by saying, "With a class as large as ours (290 people), you'd think that it would be easy to find volunteers to help out, but unfortunately this isn't the case. We still need alot more support and unity throughout our class, but the students seem to be more interested and involved than last year."

During the course of the year, the class of 1994 proved their unity and showed EHS that they are prepared for the years to come.

Encinal's Blood Drive for the 1991-92 year was held on October 4 in the Career Center, with a total of 66 pints donated. That's ten pints more that was donated than last years, but at one pint per student, that's only 66 students out of the 1000 pupils who attend our school who gave blood. Why so few?

First of all, being a donor wasn't as easy as it looked. The prerequisites were that the donor needed to weigh at least 110 pounds and be at least seventeen years old. Second, the blood bank came equipped with a questionnaire for all potential donors, and if one answered "yes" to questions such as, "Have you ever had Hepatitis?" or "Have you had your ears pierced within the last six months?", you were unable to give blood and was kindly turned away.

Those lucky enough to pass the Blood Bank's rigorous standards had to have their hemoglobin, pulse, and temperature taken first. After they had given blood, students were treated to cookies and apple juice, which helped them replenish themselves. These students were also advised to stay away from strenuous exercise for 48 hours. In exchange for their gift of life, blood, donors received a free T-shirt.

This year was another success for the donors of Encinal High School. With the Blood Bank coming to visit our school, students had the chance to show that they cared enough for themselves and the community by donating their blood. Remember, by donating blood you are helping those in need and when it comes time that you are in need, there will be someone there to help you. Don't be afraid to show that you care.

You drag your feet through the entrance of school, bracing yourself for another one of those fun filled days . . . NOT! Day after day and week after week, you follow the same monotonous schedule until you almost go insane with boredom.

As you drop into your first period seat you try to snatch a few more minutes of precious sleep as the morning announcements come on. Something catches your attention. Did they say SPIRIT DAY?!?! Suddenly, the day seem a little brighter.

For students at Encinal, spirit days meant fun, smiles, and laughter galore. They were something to look forward to. One of life's little pleasures. One could watch their fellow classmates make fools of themselves in the noontime games. Ahh, what else was there to life?

Big and tall, fat and skinny, practically everyone joined in the noontime games. On a typical spirit day you could watch friends digging their faces in plates of whipped cream, pushing eggs across the lawn with their noses, covering another classmates body with toilet paper, or any other silly stunt you could possibly imagine.

Students flocked to the front lawn on spirit days and new friendship were formed. Everyone would chow down and watch the day's activities unfold. The audience themselves would always be a sight to behold as they always sat enshrouded in the "theme" of the day.

Just to mention a few, there were beach days, tie days, backwards days, twin days, and of course, there was Halloween. Also Jet Pride Days when everyone were blue and white.

Spirit days kept the students happy and brought smiles to their faces. They brought experiences and moments that made memories for a lifetime. Most importantly though, spirit days kept the students from going insane with boredom.

house party overloaded

The upperclassmen and lowerclassmen came to boogie down together for the first time of the year, thanks to the Student Government class, which put together the Welcome Back Dance. The Student Government class spent countless hours of preparation for this fun-filled night on the dance floor, which pulled in a grand total of $1000.00 dollars thanks to the D.J.'s, Lodda Sounds, who played the beat all night long.

However the biggest crowd-catching was the Homecoming Dance, also sponsored by the Student Government class that attracted over 200 students. With different D.J.'s (Video Dance Party U.S.A). Encinal's gymnasium was turned into an M.T.V. House Party with screen magic, pumped heels and slacks, and videos from favorite artists. Even though this house party had people lined up outside for an hour it dragged in a mere $400.00 dollars.

Speaking of dollar signs none of these dances measured up to the Sophomore's Winter Ball, which pulled in a whopping $1143.80 dollars. Ladda Sounds pumped up the volume for three straight hours with artists like Naughty By Nature, Humpty Hump, Mariah Carey, M.C. Brains and Color Me Badd. Students strutted their stuff until the beat of the last tune was heard fading away with the hot air that filled the gymnasium.

a year of miracles and horrors

Encinal High School's Fine Arts Department presented two dazzling performances this year.

"The Miracle Worker", told of the struggle of Annie Sullivan to teach Helen, a deaf and blind child to "see." Her attempts were often thwarted by Helen's own parents, who had spoiled Helen out of pity, and did not always approve of the slightly harsh methods of Annie.

Everyone who saw "The Miracle Worker" was instantly transported into the world of Helen Keller by the terrific acting abilities of the cast. Kara Navradszky, who played Helen, spoke but one word, yet managed to make everyone laugh, cry, and gasp for breath at her actions. Sarah Rasmussen clearly portrayed the spunk of Annie Sullivan. Geoff Milam and Marie Acosta played Helen's parents. The rest of the cast- Mary Brenstrom (Viney), David Sherman (the doctor), Kristin Hesse (Martha), Cliff Poche (Percy), Malaika Fisher (Aunt Ev), and Josh Lumpkin (James Keller)- did a tremendous job as well.

The spring musical, "The Little Shop of Horrors," was made into a highly successful play. Amy Keegan was student director of this tale of a strange and unusual plant that fed on human blood. Seymour Krelborn, played by Geoff Milam, was seduced into providing the plant, Audrey II, with human victims in exchange for fame and the love of his co-worker, Audrey, played by Melanie Hawkins. Audrey's abusive boyfriend, Orin Scrivello, was played by Tacho Ordaz, and Cliff Poche portrayed Seymour and Audrey's boss, Mr. Musnik. Helping to tell the story was trio of singers: Kristin Hesse, Sarah Rasmussen, and Monica Termini. In addition to these characters, a chorus of street people were added. Students who played a variety of characters in the musical were Donny Watson, Vernita Johnson, Lou Rivera, Beki Duarte, Peter Major, Jeremy LeBlanc, Kim Brown, Jacob Schleininger, and Alicia Lengel. The plant itself was played by David Sherman with the voice provided by Anita Lyons.

Under the direction of Mr. Robert Moorhead, "The Miracle Worker" and "Little Shop of Horrors", came to life.

assemblies bring out the best

The 1991-92 school year was filled with a plethora of varying assemblies, each unique with, its own theme and features. Assemblies served as a place to congregate the student body, so all might witness the exilherating examples of student talent.

Homecoming ushered in our new school year with skits and dances galore. The seniors marched away with the victory, with their "Showdown at the Hodown" skit. The Juniors came in second place, with the Sophomore and Freshman classes in third and fourth places.

Spirit week marked a great chance for each class to show-off their own "Student Pride". Each class wore a color to represent themselves. The Seniors wore blue, Juniors wore black, Sophomores with red while the Freshman wore white. The assembly started-off with a "rain" number. A chorus of fingers snapped as it resembled raindrops falling on top of a roof and foot-stomping resembled the thunder while the clapping resembled the lightning.

The Wild Life Associates brought in animals that were spared from the cruelties of the human lifestyles. Animals ranging from an eagle to a cougar were shown to the students with their stories of what was done to them and how they were brought back to health.

International Week brought together the whole school in learning the cultures of other countries. This gave the students a chance to acquire more knowledge, and bring the school's different races together in a "melting pot" of racial equality. All in all, this was a year of great assemblies.

The Encinal Varsity Jets arrived at Thompson Field with hopes of a big win running through their heads. All hoped to be the one to score the winning touchdown or even be the one to stuff the Hornet offense. All had big plans for the game and they were all going to try their hardest to beat their rivals, the Alameda Hornets.

Alameda was to have a case of dumb luck strike them early. On the Jets first possession, Andre Shelton broke through the Hornet line and ran for a seventy eight yard touchdown, only to have an offensive penalty bring the ball back to the line of scrimmage.

The game was to be one of push and pull. Each team gave little to their opponent's offense. As the half came to an end the Jets seemed to have the upperhand with a six point lead.

Fumbles and turnovers were an incessant problem, each team handed the ball to the other on more than one occasion. A bad snap resulted in a Jet safety.

As the third quarter opened fatigue seemed to grab the line. The Hornets managed to turn their opening drive into a six point touchdown. The game was up for grabs when the Hornets began to pull ahead. Slowly but surely the Jets halftime lead had been dissolved.

The win was not to be for the Jets. Alameda was to win by a score of twenty two to seven. Through all of it though, the faithful fans supported their team with patented "Jet Pride".

seniors face fight of their lives to win homecoming '91

Forget the "Big Game", the court, and the dance: this Homecoming Week was where, for five days straight one could find school spirit at its peak, and lunch ceased to be just a break to finish fifth and sixth period's homework, but became a school activity in itself on the lawn. During these five days leadership hauled out the sound system so that students could listen to their favorite music as they watched their friends make fools of themselves playing the noontime games.

Games, such as "Pass the Orange", "Balloon Shave", and "Skin the Snake", kept us entertained but according to Spirit Commissioner Kristen Hesse they had a deeper purpose; "Each day the games got harder, and so each class had to learn teamwork. No teamwork, no points." Maybe it was fitting then that the Seniors won the noontime competition, since they've had four years to work on it.

However, when it came to the class cheer, a new competition added by Hesse this year, the Seniors didn't quite cut it with, "If you're a senior and you know it show your pride." The Juniors won this catagory with, "Juniors ... Class of '93 (GRUNT)!" And the Sophomores put their two cents in with "Go Sophomores ... GO Sophomores." The Freshmen had no contribution.

Most important, though, were the halls. Who could forget all the class meetings, the weeks spent in preparation, and the long, grueling hours put in on Thursday night decorating the halls for judging on Friday morning? Well ... maybe the Freshmen could. Their hall, or "Da Ghetto" as they put it, consisted of a few signs taped to the windows and some scattered papers. The Sophomores were a bit more creative and colorful with their "Hippy" theme, and decorated their hallway with rainbows, peace signs, and references to songs and musical groups dating back to the '60's and early '70's. The Juniors recreated the feel of Oz with their "Follow the Yellow Brick Road" theme, where they set up a cornfield, a haunted forest, with their respective scarecrow and tin man, as well as "Saphire City." The Seniors clinched the victory though with their "Showdown at the Hoedown": for a few, brief, shining moments the Seniors put a real-live Ghost town in the main hall, complete with a city hall, a jail, Millie's House of Hospitality, and even a hangin' cowboy.

In fact the Seniors won overall with 717 points, just barely beating the Juniors, who had 652, and the Sophomores hung in there with 466. The Freshmen, however, came out with only 90 points. Maybe next year will be kinder to the class of '95.

a day of royalty

The crowd exploded into a frenzy of clapping hands and screaming voices as the Homecoming King and Queen were announced. Seniors Eben Rogers and Jennifer Burgos, ecstatic at their good fortune, walked up the aisle and accepted the congratulations of their court - 4th runners-up: Judy Rodriguez and Ibrahim McFarlin, 3rd runners-up: Ijere James and Jason Simpson, 2nd runners-up: Anita Lyons and Andre Shelton, and 1st runners-up: Marama Gifford and Jayson Bey.

The crowning of the homecoming court brought to a close the festivities of Homecoming Week. During the week, various noon-time games gave the classes opportunities to compete against each other. As the Friday of the assembly approached, everyone focused their attention on their skits and hallways.

Following tradition, the seniors won first place in the Homecoming competition. Their hallway took the students back to the "Wild Wild West", and their skit was an amusing rendition of a western ho-down.

For the juniors, homecoming meant a lot of work. All of their efforts paid off in the splendid display of "Yellow Brick Road" memorabilia that decorated their hall. The juniors were quite satisfied with the second place their efforts earned.

The sophomores took the students back to the seventies with their "Hippie Days" theme. Their skit included a lot of grooving "Hippie Style". Their hall was decorated with assorted hippie paraphernilia. Their creative theme helped win them third place in the competition.

"The Ghetto" was the theme used by the freshmen. Burning buildings, litter, and dead bodies decorated their hallway. Unfortunately, they did not have an advisor and couldn't perform a skit.

Clubs have played a major part in Encinal High School's student life. Clubs have brought forth appreciation and goals for students. Each and every year, each club strive to be the best it can be. The 1991-92 school year was no exception. This school year has brought two new clubs to the Encinal Campus.

This year, Encinal High School welcomed the Culture Club, which was sponsored by Ms. Rosylin Bessard, Mr. Earl Rivard, and Mr. Warren Haber. In addition to the Culture Club, there was the new Farsi Club, whose sponsor was Mr. Earl Rivard. Both clubs met regularly with their sponsors at lunch on Thursdays. These clubs discussed vital social issues, future activities, and goals.

The other clubs which are familiar to us were Drama Club, Future Farmers of America Club, Key Club, Spanish Club, Future Business Leaders of America, and California Scholarship Federation.

This year the Drama Club decided to do something new and exciting for the school. The Drama Club was involved in the making of the video yearbook. The video included many of the events that went on through the school year. The video yearbook even filmed footage of the graduation. The video yearbook was truly a pure success.

Key Club spent many hours at conventions and doing community service. Key Club members volunteered weekly at the local convalescent homes. Aside from the community service, Key Club members worked hard at earning extra money through fundraisers. The biggest event and money-maker was the data match for couples.

The Spanish Club often sold chow mein, nachos, and cheesecake on Wednesdays at lunch. On the Wednesday when the club wasn't selling during lunch, they met and discussed future plans for the club.

The Future Business Leaders of America held their annual Christmas Bazaar in Ms. Rosylin Bessard's room. The Christmas Bazaar that the club sponsored was a huge success. Many parents, teachers, students, and people from the community attended the bazaar. There were many original ideas for gifts of giving.

Candy selling was the money-maker for the California Scholarship Federation. These students knew that the way to a person's money was through their stomach. Aside from making money, the California Scholarship Federation spent time tutoring students in various subjects.

Clubs have been and always will be a major part of the pupils life at school. With the help and dedication from those that care, clubs will remain in the school system for a very long time. The clubs thank those who cared and were willing to share.

BUY RECYCLED PRODUCTS AND PACKAGING.

1. LOOK FOR THE RECYCLING LOGO AND FOR MATERIALS MARKED "RECYCLABLE."
2. USE SPONGES INSTEAD OF PAPER INSTEAD OF PAPER TOWELS AND CLOTH NAPKINS INSTEAD OF PAPER.
3. BUY REUSABLE COTTON DIAPERS OR USE A DIAPER SERVICE. BOTH ARE CHEAPER THAN BUYING DISPOSABLE DIAPERS AND ARE MORE ENVIRONMENTALLY SOUND. DISPOSABLE DIAPERS OCCUPY 1 TO 2 PERCENT OF LANDFILL SPACE.
4. USE A REUSABLE CLOTH OR COTTON STRING SHOPPING BAG.
5. BUY REBUILT AUTO PARTS, RECYCLED OIL, RETREADED TIRES, AND RECHARGED BATTERIES.

REUSE, REDUCE, RECYCLE

1. SET ASIDE SPACE IN YOUR HOUSE AND YOUR OFFICE TO STORE RECYCLABLES SUCH AS NEWSPAPER, OFFICE PAPER, CARDBOARD, GLASS, ALUMINUM, TIN, AND STEEL.
2. RECYCLE USED AUTO PARTS, MOTOR OIL, TIRES, AND BATTERIES. TAKE THEM TO GAS STATIONS, DEALERS, AND RECLAMATION CENTERS.
3. HELP SET UP RECYCLING CENTERS IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD AND COLLECT MATERIALS FOR RECYCLING.
4. DEMAND THAT YOUR LOCAL GOVERNMENT PASS MANDATORY RECYCLING AND COMPOSTING LAWS FOR HOME, WORK PLACE, AND SCHOOL GARBAGE COLLECTION.
5. OPPOSE MUNICIPAL INCINERATION PROJECTS IN YOUR CITY AND STATE.

IN 1992 EVERY SECOND ONE ACRE OF THE RAINFOREST IS DESTROYED. THE EXTINCTION OF ONE SPECIES OF TREE CAN CAUSE THE LOSS OF MANY TYPES OF INSECTS THAT ARE DEPENDENT UPON THAT PARTICULAR TREE. THE LOSSS OF THOSE INSECTS, IN TURN. CAN ENDANGER OTHER PLANTS, INSECTS, AND MAMMALS.

UNLESS WE ACT NOW, SCIENTISTS' PREDICTIONS WILL COME TRUE: INCREASING GLOBAL TEMPERATURE, CHANGING RAINFALL PATTERNS, RAGING STORMS, RISING SEA LEVELS, AND OTHER DISASTROUS CONSEQUENCES WILL GRADUALLY DESTROY ECOSYSTEMS AND HUMAN SOCIETIES AROUND THE WORLD. BEING ENERGY EFFICIENT AT HOME AND AT WORK- USING FLUORESCENT BULBS, FOR EXAMPLE- COULD SLOW GLOBAL WARMING.

A SIMPLE RULE OF THUMB: REDUCE, REUSE, RECYCLE.

EACH YEAR INDUSTRIES DISCHARGE, BURY, AND PUMP BILLIONS OF POUNDS OF HAZARDOUS CHEMICALS INTO OUR WATER, LAND, AND AIR.

EACH YEAR, THE AVERAGE U.S. CITIZEN THROWS AWAY 1200LBS. OF GARBAGE. BY 1993, OVER ONE HALF OF EHISTING LANDFILLS WILL BE FULL.

MORE THAN 84 PERCENT OF MUNICIPAL SOLID WASTE COULD BE REUSED, RECYCLED, OR COMPOSTED INSTEAD OF BEING BURIED OR BURNED. THE NOTABLE EXCEPTION IS PLASTICS. CLOTH DIAPERS AND SHOPPING BAGS ARE ENVIRONMENTALLY SOUND ALTERNATIVES TO THEIR SO-CALLED "DEGRADABLE" PLASTIC COMPETITION.

AS TROPICAL FORESTS DISAPPEAR, TENS OF THOUSANDS OF INDIGENOUS PEOPLES LOSE THEIR HOMES AND THEIR UNIQUE CULTURES. A TRAGIC CONSEQUENCE OF TROPICAL FOREST DESTRUCTION IS THE EHTINCTION OF MANY UNIQUE PLANT AND ANIMAL SPECIES, SOME WHICH WILL BE NEVER BE KNOWN TO WESTERN SCIENCE.

SOME 60,000 TO 80,000 CHEMICALS ARE NOW IN USE IN THE U.S. AND SEVERAL THOUSAND MORE ARE CREATED EACH YEAR. THE MOST TOXIC OF THESE ARE KNOWN TO BE PERSISTENT AND BIOACCUMULATE.

CHLOROFLUOROCARBONS (CFCs), FOUND IN AEROSOL CONTRAINERS, ARE DESTROYING THE OZONE LAYER.
THE OZONE LAYER PROTECTS US FROM ULTRAVIOLET RADIATION THAT COMES FROM THE SUN. WITH THE CONTINUOUS USE OF AEROSOL CONTRAINERS, THE OZONE LAYER WILL EVENTUALLY BE DESTROYED, CAUSING HUMAN LIVES. THE GOOD NEWS IS THERE ALREADY EHIST SAFE SUBSTITUTES FOR CFCs THAT DO NOT HARM THE OZONE OR CONTRIBUTE TO GLOBAL WARMING.

EVERY WEEK 20 PLANTS AND ANIMALS BECOME EHTINCT.

jets reach the top

This year's athletes swam, sprinted, and dribbled their way to the top. The 1991-92 athletic season was pure success for Encinal High School's sports-minded students. Encinal's Hall of Fame captured about ten East Shore Athletic All-League titles. These athletes showed us their determination, perseverance, and pride.

The fall season started with sheer triumph for Cross Country, Volleyball, and Water Polo athletes. Esayas Yohannes and Amy Yuen ran off with All-League titles for Cross Country, while Eben Rogers swam his way to a title for Water Polo. On the Volleyball courts, All-Leaguer, Marama Gifford, spiked, served and dinked her way to a title.

During the winter season, Encinal had added five more All-Leaguers to the Hall of Fame. In the sport of Soccer, Encinal was represented by Diego Moraga, who dribbled his way for a sole title. Moraga was not the only one who dribbled his way to the top! Chris Lee, who represented the Boys Basketball team showed us his stuff. For the Girls Basketball team, Tarsha Burson and Julie Wagner garnered All-League awards. Last, but certainly not least, Ian Dewey, wrestled his way to Encinal's Hall of Fame.

Due to the yearbook deadline, we were unable to publish the names for the future East Shore Athletic League All-League titles for spring sports. However, we were notified that Judy Rodriguez did sprint her way to an All-League title for girls Track and Field.

Congratulations to all those that made it to the East Shore Athletic League, earning All-League titles. Good Luck to the Baseball, Softball, Swimming/Diving, Badminton, Boys Tennis, and Track and Field athletes.

freshmen off to a rocky start

The class of '95' started their high school career rather precariously. Along with the normal turbulence that most freshmen classes experience, the class of '95' was struck with a case of bad luck. They began the year without a sponsor, and as Homecoming approached the freshman class had no one to lead them. Class officers hadn't been elected and a sponsor still hadn't been found. The freshmen had no skit and didn't even know what hall decorating was.

The freshmen were considered to be out of the Homecoming competition when, with an inspired burst of jet pride, they managed to put together a hallway. "Down in the ghetto" was their theme Litter and spray-painted banners covered the walls and tape outlines of dead bodies decorated the floor. Unfortunately, the freshman class was not able to put a skit together, but next year they will be better prepared.

As November rolled around the freshmen blew a sigh of relief. as they were finally assigned class sponsors. Mr. Bainbridge, a newcomer to Encinal, and Ms. Hilberg, a math teacher, took the freshman class under their wings. Freshman class officers were elected on November 12th, and immediately they set to work planning events for the upcoming year. Fundraisers, such as candy sales, were organized and new ideas were discussed. Fall President Braulio Johnston was already thinking about his sophomore year. "Next year I'd like to see more opportunities for freshmen to get involved with school activities. One good way to do this would be to have Homecoming court members from each grade. That way more people would get to vote for people they know instead of just voting for anyone."

Even though they got off to a rocky start, the class of '95' pulled together and managed to have a successful year.

the year's final moments

With the end of the year also comes this edition of the yearbook. A view of "a year in your life". Our staff tried to include as many pictures of students and events of the past year to immortalize your high school days.

We would like to thank all the students and faculty members who supported and helped us to make this book.

Hope your year was filled with memories and many more to come.
